

Why we need to collect data on the languages of crisis-affected people

To fill the gap in humanitarian data on language, add 4 simple questions to multisectoral needs assessments:

What is the main language you speak at home?

Which language do you prefer to receive written information in?

Which language do you prefer to receive verbal information in?

How do you prefer to receive information (in person, radio, TV, poster, leaflet, phone call, SMS, etc.)?

For more on the impact of a lack of language data on humanitarian action, visit www.clearglobal.org or contact info@clearglobal.org